In another column will be found a letter and an article reproduced from the Foochow is made, namely, that foreign machinery. and foreign methods have at length been introduced in the preparation of ten in one o'clock, the steam launch Dayspring, carrying of the districts near Foochow. The commencement is a small one and how the experiment will result temains to be seen. The machinery has been got up to Peeling without opposition, but whether immunity from mandarin obstruction will continue to be enjoyed is doubtful. There can be no foreign methods were officially approved they would speedily become general and a great revival in the ten trade would result. notwithstanding the heavy taxation to in all, it is said, to 40 per cent. If at the same time that foreign methods are introduced the taxation were either wholly abolished or reduced to a moderate amount the China tea trade would soon regain its impoverished by the loss of their principal industry. If foreign capital were allowed on the matter. to be freely invested in the interior we would soon have numerous planting companies established whose prospects the Shanghai cotton companies from which so much is expected. Following its usual policy, however, China would probably object to foreigners acquiring any vested interest beyond the treaty ports. In the case of the Foodhow enterprise Mr. Eraser has ir sumably been enabled to make some special arrangement to permit of his establishing himself at Peeling, but on this point ever, the introduction of foreign machinery and foreign methods affords a ray of hope Hongkong, it is only natural that they also the Philippines was to be murdered, but for attempting to escape; and upon entering the that goes, from here Timor takes from in the China tea trade have enjoyed for many years.

notually happened was that during the few days before the end of the month some £5,000,000 had to be provided by the Bank of England. In these days the money market in all parts of the world is speedily affected by what takes place in London and we must as a matter of course expect that the comparative tightness of money at home will be felt to some exten out here in the Far East. We may derive some consolution from the axiom that cheap money means depression of trade and dear money good. times, but nevertheless the period of transition is always a trying one, especially in the share market, which responds most readily to changes in the money market. Investors and speculators would therefore do well to study closely the signs of the times. So far as the Hougkong share market is concerned, the position could hardly be sounder, if we look only to purely local conditions, but we are liable to suffer sympathetically from the atments of Shanghai, and unfortunately the conditions there are not quite so favourable. KESWICK'S Act is not in force there and for nome time past speculation has been running dangerously high, operators have been paying for having their shares carried over for them from month to month, and if a slight stringency in the money market really makes itself felt it is to be feared there will be little difficulty over settlements and that values in Hungkong will be proportionately affected. The defendant told them that if they would come to Hongkong with him and work as stone cutters he would give them $2 a month besides their keep They blindly accepted the proposal started on their journey with the defendant, not knowing where Hongkong was. When they arrived here the defendant said had not yet reached their destination but that they would have to remain here one day. It was the defendant's intention to get the men to Singapore and the Hydaspes was sailing for that port the next day. He therefore ledged the men in a coolie house and told them that they must on no account leave it until they again started on their journey. The next day the men were safely got on board the Hydaspes. Whilst Sergt. Holt was making his usual inspection of the emigrants he noticed the defendant with the two men and as he is fairly well known to the police the sergeant thought he would question his two charges as to their destination. They replied that tuey did not know where they were going. In the meantime the defendant had disappeared and this fact strengthened the suspicions of Sergt. Holt. He searched the ship and found the man stowed away in a small compartment at the fore part of the skip. He-was then arrested.

HONGKONG GOLF CLUB.

Commodore Boyes was entertained at dinner on Wednesday evening last by about members of the Golf Club. Captain Rumsey the Captain of the Club, who occupied the chair, in proposing the health of the guest of the evening, referred in graceful terms to the interest the Commodore has always taken in golf. and the benefit that the Club had derived from his two years Captainey. The er Captain, or o would say the "XX Captain," had seen Club grow up and flourish after the style of the green bay tree, and it was owing in a very measure to his keenness and geniality that the Club was in such a good way. tonst was drunk amidst great onthusiasm, with musical honours and three times three.

The Commodore on rising to respond was that it was somé time before he could make himself heard. He reviewed the life of the Club which he said resembled a baby when he joined it and now when he was leaving the with their positions by His Majesty the Emcolony he found it a well grown boy. A grand game like golf, he said, would nover languish, and the probable result was that before long the number of members would lagely increase. The game was one that every one could play, because you could always find some one to play with and beat. He the story of a certain old Colonel who played

Capt. Rumsey had alluded to "the system." regards this, all he, the Commodore; could say was that this "system" (which is now proverbial in Hongkong golfing circles) had carried him through many a tough fight, and he felt proud to say that on his last public appearance on the links he defeated a great friend of his by its aid. This friend, however, was not a Jones." The Commodore resumed his seat amid loud applaase, after wishing the Hongkong Golf Club and golfers all success. Mr. McKie then in a humorous speech proposed Mr. Waymouth's health, and after a response and a song or two a most pleasant. evening came to an end.

We find ourselves forestelled by our correspondent "T" in being the first to make public an important piece of news, the introduction into this province of the Indian method of subscribers not to publish anything the might hear about it for a time, and it is only within the last few days that we have been released from our undertaking to abide by the request. Although the thought may have been quite original on Mr. Frasor's part, it was not altogether a new one. The idea of its feasibility had occurred to more than one of our resident merchants but was abandoned by reason tion of the receipts, but in this case aven a loss proportion, say Tls. 10,000,000, is officially reported, and is available to the central Government; untold millions go to the bureaucracy, the armies of official harpies and the innumerable syndicates, junkmon, and others who fatten on the salt industry in one way cranother. If, therefore, we leave to China her salt and her land-tax, to manage as she may list, until such time as she may be ripe for further financial imdiscontant: we abandon to the bureaucracy their chief "squeezes," and we in no way disturb, the existing administrative harmony. But, I submit, there is a way, and a simple way, in which we can double or trable the revenues of the central Government; compansate the bureaucracy for any imaginary damage done to their interests by the course I am about to advocate; enormously increase the volume of foreign trade; confer a great boon upon European merchants; and work an inestimable benefit upon the Chinese people at large.

If we were to consent to raise the average import duties to double what they now are (or a quarter more, or a third more), and stipulate in return for the absolute abolition of likin throughout the whole Empire, we should be doing what the instance of foreign opium has shown to be perfectly fessible. In 1887 weconsented to an enormous likin being collected on opium at the same time that the insignificant import duty was levied. This likin amounted in 1891 to the respectable sum of Tls. 6,200,000. or a million storling. There could not be Botter proof of the ease with which the central Government can, if it chooses, put a total stop to likin barriers, than the fact that ever since 1887 all likin trouble with opium disappeared as if by magic. In one or two cases a misguided Viceroy—for instance, Li Han-cheng, brother of Li Hung-chang-has tried a prentice hand upon opium, but such attempts have always been instantly suppressed by express telegraph

At first sight our merchants may look askance at a wholesale increase in import duties, and special measures would certainly be necessary to protect our cotton goods from local manufactures. It would also be necessary to have some hold upon the increased revenue, so that the instantaneous componsation might be offered in cases where any attempt should be made to impose taxes in the interior. Against all this, however, must be set the enormous impetus which would, be given to foreign trade by the sitter "disappearance of all trading "obstacles through the length and brendth of the land; the enhanced activity in land; the consequent increase of wealth and confidence; the disappearance of irritating diplomatic questions, from Peking

Out of the largely increased revenue thus raised, it would be necessary to set aside, say, Tls. 15,000,000 to compensate the provincial Governments liberally for the lesses incurred by them. Thus they would become the friends instead of the enemies of the foreign Customs, and the first solid and important step would be-taken towards the regeneration of China:

LOVE AND ADVENTURE VETERAN WRITER.

QUEEN'S CUP. G. A. HENTY. Author of " A Woman of the Commune," "A Hidden Foe." "The Curse of

Curne's Hold," Dorothy's Double," &c., &c. The Opening Chapters of the above Story appeared in the Hongkong Daily Press of

SATURDAY, August 20th.

For a quarter of a century Mr. G. A. HENTY are prepared to receive orders to make LADING, found it of great benefit. Toften withor from has held, and more than held, his own as a GENTLEMEN'S and CHILDREN'S SHOES and Chronic Bronchitis; your Lozenge is the only writer of stories of adventure; stories charac-BOOTS of all sorts and descriptions, also to remedy which gives me inmediate ease. Therefore terised by healthy sensation and the inculcation I certainly and most strongly recommend your of high morals, free from mostly-monthed sentimentalism. During recent years, however, be has won a large degree of popularity in the field of more serious fiction by the reciness of his style and the remarkable knowledge of his subject. His name is now almost a household word wherever the English language is spoken.
